

Corvallis Visit

03/01/20

Recently our little pup was able to visit college students(family members) on the trip to drop off essential for survival. Russell already had a packed day with going to the park in the morning but unnoticed by parents he stuck it through and eagerly made his way ALL THE WAY up FOUR LEVEL staircase. That did not stop, no sir-y! Huffing and puffing, he still had energy to check out close to kin's apartment unit. There was plenty of water and time for this tired pup to relax. After awhile, he was on his merry way back to the car; BUT for the first time ever! He got on an elevator. Oh what an experience that was once he noticed this strange device. The confused look he had was so funny :)
